

I respectfully request you do not allow Low Power FM stations to take priority over the current FM translator service. Changing the regulations involved would threaten K-LOVE, which positively affects me and my community. When I'm at home I listen to K-LOVE almost exclusively, because it airs music and comments with a Godly, moral message. This is in sharp contrast to other radio stations which, while they often play music I like, consistently mix it with a cynical and immoral world view. K-LOVE regularly informs me of specific volunteer programs I can get involved in, and so improves the quality of life in my community as a whole, in ways that would be felt if K-LOVE were to be crippled by losing access to its FM translators. For example, K-LOVE often gives contact and donation information for local soup kitchens and missions that aid homeless people here in Lexington. K-LOVE also encourages me with Bible verses and personal stories that have a real and measurable effect on my productivity at work; many of my friends confide it has the same effect on them. This all adds up to real man-hours worth of improved performance community-wide. I believe it is vital to keep K-LOVE reaching all its communities nationwide, through the FM translators it currently uses, so that people in general can benefit from the encouragement it offers and the volunteer services it facilitates, and so Christians in particular have access to music and news presented in accordance with their worldview. Please do not threaten this by giving LPFM service precedence over existing translator service. Thank you.
